

... subject of Suffer Little Children which are the most accomplished parts of the window. The period's high rates of child mortality explain why this iconography was regularly requested by donors, but the portrayal of certain figures suggest, as in window s2, the use of personal images probably from photographs for both the parents and children.