

but with absolutely no visual imagery or ornamentation. Such windows were undoubtedly cheap, they stopped the draughts, and were almost certainly the product of a local manufacturer incurring minimal transportation costs.